STROKE FATAL TO MOTHER OF LOCAL SLAYER

Mrs. Anna Rebecca Hartman, Mother Of Philip Hartman, Is Buried This Morning.

A mother's lonely vigil, a death watch, for the return of her son is ended. Her brave fight against overwhelming odds, the ravages of a paralytic stroke, that left her almost helpless, is lost, and she has gone to her final resting place, her unselfish love for her own blood unmarred, steadfast in her belief that her boy would return to her before she paid the supreme sacrifice.

Mrs. Anna Rebecca Hartman, 54, mother of Philip R. Hartman, self-confessed slayer of Trooper Francis L. Haley, and admitted robber of the Abbottstown State Bank, was laid to rest this morning in the family lot in Mount Olivet cemetery, near Abbottstown.

Simple funeral services marked the burial of Mrs. Hartman. Only a few friends made the funeral journey from Anville to Abbottstown, and paid their final respects to a mother, whose love for her son kept her alive from early October, despite the affliction of a paralytic stroke. All the efforts of medical science were futile, in an attempt to save her life. Her determination to see "her boy" once more, alone, kept her alive.

Wages Brave Fight

Stricken shortly before her son surrendered to Reading officials, after one of the most sensational man-hunts in the history of the Pennsylvania State Police, Mrs. Hartman waged the bravest battle of her life, her fight against death, that she might be with her son again.

Ignorant of the fact that he was confined in a cell in the Adams county jail, charged with first degree murder, and that he would never return to her, until the Commonwealth had exacted the penalty for his crimes, Mrs. Hartman remained steadfast in her devotion to her offspring, loyal in the belief that he was away, working, and that he would return to her, ere death had overtaken her.

Even the death of her grand-son, the 14-month-old son of the confined man, was kept from her. The shock was too great, members of the family believed, to inform her, and this little fellow was buried just a few weeks ago. Hartman and his wife were closeted in the local jail, when news of the death of their child was received. Through this period Hartman retained his self-composure, although suffering a mental strain that exacted its toll on his physical being.

Breaks Under Strain

On Thursday of last week, fighting vainly against the grim reaper, Mrs. Hartman broke under the severe strain and death overtook her. Up to the time of her passing, she still believed that her son would return to her before the final call, and to her family members at her bedside she confided again her love for her boy, her confidence in him, and her devotion in his well-being. The while he paced his small cell, unable to be with his mother in her last moments.

And so this morning, the funeral party arrived in Abbottstown, bearing the lifeless form of Mrs. Anna Rebecca Hartman.

Direct to the Mount Olivet Cemetery moved the little procession. Members of the immediate family and a few intimate friends comprised the party. Simple services were conducted at the grave and the body was lowered in the cedar-lined pit, where it will remain, beside the body of another son, buried some time ago.

From the cemetery, the party moved to the St. John's Lutheran Church at Abbottstown. Rev. U. E. Apple, pastor of the Lutheran Church at Anville, officiated with the Rev. Paul Gladfelter assisting.

Funeral Sermon

"The Preciousness of Faith" was the subject of the funeral sermon of Rev. Apple. The text was taken from the Psalm 116, 15th verse: "Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of a saint."

Twelve women, representing the Pcoahontas lodge of Anville, comprised an honorary escort, and conducted the ritualistic services of the auxiliary of Red Men.

Hartman, in his cell here, was informed of the death of his mother, by his father, Josiah Hartman, and the Anville funeral director, on Thursday evening.

FARM WEATHER REPORT

Eastern Pennsylvania: Partly cloudy and cooler tonight. Tuesday fair.

TWO DEER ARE KILLED BY CARS

Two deer, one a buck and the other a doe, were killed by motor busses on the Lincoln Highway, between here and Caledonia park, over the weekend.

On Saturday evening, a doe was struck and fatally injured by the Caledonia-Gettysburg bus, near Newman's. The carcass was given to the Warner hospital.

On Sunday evening, the Piney Mountain Inn bus killed a buck near Graeffenburg Inn. The Adams county home was the recipient of this carcass.

Both kills were reported to Leo Bushman, county game warden, who investigated the killings and made disposition of the bodies.

CHURCH FRONT PILLARS HERE

White Stone Pillars and Fronting Arrive; Two Bronze Tablets Nearing Completion.

The new memorial front to St. Francis Xavier's church on High street, being erected by the Knights of Columbus of Pennsylvania, will be completed in ample time for the dedication exercises which are planned for some time in May 1925. Assurance of the completion of the memorial front was given Rev. Fr. Mark E. Stock, by the contractors last week, when the material for the preliminary work was received.

For some time, it was believed that the stone would not be received in time to do some of the work before cold weather set in, and local members of the K. C. were skeptical as to the completion of the memorial in time for the dedication exercises.

However, all fears were set aside last week, when the large white stone blocks and the huge pillars were received. Ten tons of pillars have been contracted for and the entire shipment was deposited in front of the church a few days ago. The pillars when erected will be thirty feet high and will present an imposing appearance to the large entrances into the edifice. The three doorways have been cut through the front of the church already, while the foundation work for the white stone is about completed.

2 Bronze Tablets

Word was also received from Samuel Murray, prominent sculptor of Philadelphia, designer and sculptor of the Pennsylvania State monument on the battlefield, that the two large bronze tablets, the memorial markers, are being arranged and carved and that they would be completed in ample time for the laying of the cornerstone. The tablets cost $5000 and are to be hand carved and engraved. They are descriptive of the memorial and are being worked by Mr. Murray in his studio in Philadelphia. Rev. Fr. Stock recently returned from the studio where he inspected the work accomplished thus far.

Elaborate preparations are being made for the dedication of the memorial and more than 25,000 visiting Knights of Columbus are expected to be present at the exercises next May, as well as a number of other visitors.

FRAZIER FUNERAL SERVICES SUNDAY

Funeral services for James A. Frazier, who died suddenly on Steinwehr avenue last Thursday morning, were held Sunday afternoon at 1 o'clock from his late home on Steinwehr avenue. The Rev. F. L. Stine, pastor of the United Brethren Church, of which Mr. Frazier was a member, officiated. Interment was in Evergreen Cemetery.

Four sons of the deceased were the pallbearers. They were Lester, Charles, Harrison and Russell Frazier, all of Gettysburg.

Quartet Sings At Men's Banquet

The Seminary Quartet appeared at a banquet of the Men's Brotherhood of the Lutheran Church, Baltimore, of which the Rev. Robert D. Clare, graduate of Gettysburg College and Seminary, is pastor, on Saturday evening. The seminarians were well received, frequent encores being called for.

TURKEYS SCARCE WITH NOV. 27 NEAR

Farmers Are Not Selling "Grand Old Gobblers"; Prices Vary In Different Localities; Substitute Is Sought.

FOWLS NOT FAT ENOUGH

The gay old bird with the tender neck will have something to be thankful for on Thursday, Thanksgiving Day, for it is considered doubtful by local poultry dealers if many turkeys will be sold between now and Wednesday evening.

Inquiry as to the possible retail price of turkeys per pound at the two leading poultry dealers here today brought forth the response that they are not handling the national bird at all this year, and that they were therefore unable to quote a definite retail price per pound.

Indications are that the price of the "grand old gobbler" will be considerably lower this year than last although the supply for Thanksgiving appears to be small. Between 40 and 50 cents a pound live weight seems the most likely range of the price for the national bird.

Hard To Get

Local poultry dealers say they are not handling turkeys this year because they are hard to get, the fowls not being fat enough for sale at the present time. Many county farmers, they declare, are feeding the birds another month and will then offer them for sale to grace the Christmas table.

Poultry dealers from nearby towns and cities who are driving through the county, buying turkeys where they find them, are paying from 40 to 45 cents a pound. Some raisers are asking from 48 to 50 cents a pound for their stock, on the farm, making the retail price to the consumer from 50 to 65 cents a pound.

In New York the wholesale price is 30 to 32 cents a pound and the retail price is 35 to 38 cents. Most of these birds, however, are grown in Texas with a few coming from Argentina, South America.

Seek Substitute

The question of what fowl to substitute for turkey is consuming the attention of local housewives. Chicken, ducks, geese and rabbit seem to be the favorites in the order named. Chickens and ducks are plentiful, selling at 24 and 25 cents a pound, while geese are offered at 22 cents a pound.

Rabbits are scarce and must be procured as the Pilgrim fathers are depicted as doing. It is unlawful to sell rabbits in this state, although gifts of "bunnies" are in order.

BALL WORLD HUMS; JOHNSON HUNTING

(By Associated Press.) Reno, Nev., Nov. 24.—While the baseball world was speculating today on the future of Walter Johnson, pitching ace of the Washington American League Club, the twirler was out of reach on a hunting expedition.

Johnson's reported withdrawal from a deal to purchase the Oakland Pacific Coast League Club because of the lack of support to finance the transaction will necessitate a rearrangement in his plans, but he refused to discuss the situation here yesterday.

MRS. PEARL A. MAY BURIED SUNDAY

Largely attended funeral services for Mrs. Pearl A. May, who died Friday, were held Sunday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Dunlap, with further services at the Wekville Methodist Church at 2 o'clock. The church was crowded.

Pallbearers were: Ray Showers, Guy McBeth, Harvey Pitzer, James Routsong, Guy Rex and Elson Black. Interment was in the Wekville Cemetery, the Rev. Vance Green officiating.

Escaped Prisoner

Robert Bingham, escaped from the Adams county jail, upon whose head there is a $50 reward, is still at large and is being sought by officials throughout this and neighboring states.

BINGAMAN HAS POLICE RECORD

Escaped Prisoner From Local Jail Still At Large; Officials Resume Wide Search.

Efforts to recapture Robert Bingham, one of the trio of prisoners who escaped from the Adams county jail on November 13, still at large, are being renewed, since the county commissioners posted a reward of $50 for the man's apprehension.

Andy Reese and Sheldon Richardson, the other two men, who escaped from the jail with Bingham, gave themselves up to their parents, were returned to jail, and are now serving from three to six years in the Eastern Penitentiary.

Bingham's prison record dates back to 1918, when he was sentenced by the Franklin county court to from 18 months to 2 years in the Eastern Penitentiary, on a charge of forgery. He was discharged from the penal institution in June, 1920, but was immediately rearrested and sentenced to the penitentiary for from two to three years on a charge of larceny. He was discharged from the institution in June, 1923, and since then had lived in Gettysburg.

Arrested In 1908

As far back as 1908, he was arrested in Waynesboro on a charge of disorderly conduct and again in 1914 he was arrested on the same charge in Chambersburg. In both instances he was fined and discharged from custody.

YOUTH CAUGHT AFTER BATTLE

Soldier Draws Revolver and Opens Fire on Police, Who Seek to Place Him Under Arrest.

Chambersburg, Nov. 24.—Holding at bay two local policemen who were trying to take him into custody, Millard Scoppelmeyer, 19 years of age, a private from Camp Humphries, Virginia, Saturday was finally overpowered and placed under arrest, charged with forgery.

The youth is reported to have deserted from camp after convalescing at Washington, D. C., and was visiting his sister here. In need of funds he was alleged to have forged the name of C. D. Hoover, poultry dealer, to two checks which he cashed.

Accompanied by one of the merchants who was defrauded, Officer Souders attempted to arrest Scoppelmeyer as he was about to board a train. Scoppelmeyer told them Hoover would make good the checks. On the way to Hoover's business place Scoppelmeyer drew a .25 calibre revolver and held up the officer, taking his revolver down a road in the direction of Scotland.

Policeman Cramer, noticing the odd parade, overtook them and ordered Scoppelmeyer to surrender. Scoppelmeyer opened fire with both revolvers and a battle followed. The policeman fired twice before the youth surrendered. No one was shot.

Scoppelmeyer admitted forging the checks, one of which was for $23 and the other for $19.75.

FAYETTE YOUTH TO HAVE TRIAL

Charles Wilkinson to Have Preliminary Hearing Wednesday Morning in Hanover.

The warrant charging Charles Frederick Wilkinson, 27 years old, Fayetteville, Franklin county, with the murder of Francis E. Blettner, 17-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Blettner, Pennville, who was shot to death late last Saturday night at Hanover, was served upon Wilkinson yesterday afternoon at the York county jail, York, where he is a prisoner. The warrant was read to Wilkinson by Chief of Police Jesse Crabbs, Hanover, which officer placed the alleged slayer under arrest at his home in Fayetteville in a little over three hours after the shooting took place.

Following a conference between Chief Crabbs and District Attorney Walter W. Van Baman, York, Friday afternoon in that city it was announced that the preliminary hearing in the case would take place at Hanover Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock before Justice of the Peace Lewis D. Sell.

MARKER ERECTED FOR DEDICATION

The boulder and marker on the site of the frontier home of John Hanson Steelman, first white settler in Pennsylvania, west of the Susquehanna river, is located at the cross roads upon the farm in Liberty township, now owned by Mrs. Sarah A. H. Eckert, of Waynesboro, whose father, Samuel Kries, owned and resided upon the farm for a number of years. The farm has been in the possession of the Kries family for more than 100 years.

The marker will be unveiled and dedicated with appropriate public exercises next Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock, in charge of residents of Adams county, the Pennsylvania State Historical Association and the Swedish Colonial Society.

CHICAGO MAN IS CAUGHT IN EAST

(By Associated Press.) Chicago, Nov. 24.—Leo Koretz, arrested in Halifax, N. S., Saturday, on a charge of using the mails to defraud, is wanted here for alleged swindling operations said to have netted him from $2,000,000 to $7,000,000, chiefly from relatives and close friends. Family and acquaintances were pressed upon by him for funds for investment in a Bayano river syndicate which he said was flowing in oil and other speedy wealth.

Koretz disappeared 11 months ago while a personally selected committee was journeying at his expense to Panama to inspect the real holdings he said were there. His wife was left almost destitute and since his disappearance has been making a living addressing envelopes, selling coal and doing other work.

CURB PRESENTS RAGGED SHOWING

(By Associated Press.) New York, Nov. 24.—The morning's market presented a ragged appearance with energetic buying in the St. Paul air line and in the tobacco issues. This was counteracted by the heavy selling of American Can, U. S. Cast Iron Pipe and Rock Island railroad. Apart from these special movements there was good buying in the sugar, rubber and shipping issues. Early buying of the oils was stimulated by advances in gasoline prices in New England. Call money opened at 2 1/2 per cent.

SCHOOLS RESUME FALL SESSIONS

Gettysburg's schools resumed sessions this morning after a week's recess, due to the seventieth annual teacher's institute which was held here last week. The final session of the institute was held Friday morning. The next meeting will be the annual mid-winter gathering in February which will follow the two day meeting of the school directors association.

CHRISTMAS TREE IS BIG PROBLEM

More Than 5,000,000 Trees Cut Annually in U. S.; Movement Afoot To Stop Sale.

With Christmas but 30 days away, Gettysburgians, by the score, have entered into the spirit of the holiday season and already a number of the stores have started to assume their Christmas color.

Simultaneous with the Christmas gift idea and the sending of Christmas cards is the Christmas tree problem. The question has arisen, "How can every family have one?" Approximately 5,000,000 trees were cut in the United States last year, and Gettysburgians shared mightily in this percentage.

Recently H. V. Berry, of Fort Plain, New York, a delegate to the national conference on forest utilization, urged a federal law prohibiting the sale of Christmas trees. The Detroit Federation of Women's Clubs also has sent out an appeal to that end. The American Tree Association, however, says that in extending the federation's campaign to certain Christmas greens the club women are in the right, but does not favor abolishing the Christmas tree.

Universal Sign

"Why take the Christmas tree, the universal sign of the Christmas season, but of the lives of the children?" the American Tree Association asks in a statement by Charles Lathrop Pack, its president. "The Christmas tree is a legitimate by-product of the forest. The real problem is how can every family in America have one. Under proper forest management, which the association advocates, one crop of trees is made to succeed another. That is the big problem to which America must give immediate thought."

"The proper cutting of trees for Christmas use in most cases permits sturdier trees to attain greater growth. True conservation of the forest results not from leaving trees to grow old and die, but from their wise use when they are needed, in whatever size, by man."

"The foresters, whose profession it is to manage and protect the forests, assert that the use of Christmas trees is proper and wholly justifiable. Professor Ralph S. Homer says 5,000,000 trees a year in one space would require at the most 10,000 acres."

Despite the protests of some few, Gettysburgians are preparing at this time to secure their Christmas tree, asserting that a Christmas, without a Christmas tree, is no Christmas at all.

CORRECTION

William Tawney, on parole from the Adams county court, is working in Cleveland, Ohio, and is not the same man, who was arrested in Waynesboro over last week-end, charged with disorderly conduct. It is believed that the person arrested in Waynesboro gave his name as William Tawney to throw off suspicion.

MRS. HARDING IS BURIED TODAY IN MARION, OHIO

Widow of Late President Is Laid To Rest In Marion Cemetery.

(By Associated Press.) Marion, O., Nov. 24.—This Ohio city which has known the heights of joy and sorrow since 1920 was prepared today for the last scenes in the life of Mrs. Warren G. Harding, widow of the late president.

Shortly after 2 o'clock this afternoon Mrs. Harding's body was carried over the same route as that traversed by the funeral cortege of the 29th president of the United States to the Marion cemetery and there laid to rest.

Befriended Poor

The life story of Florence Kling Harding, like an epic of sturdy American womanhood, was a chronicle of continual struggle against great odds, and of continual accomplishments.

From the day she first faced the world in a pioneer home in the middle west, until, broken in health, she undertook the heavy responsibilities of the White House, she encountered hardships before which a less courageous spirit would have weakened into drab mediocrity.

Despite these trials she not only kept her courage and her vigorous individuality, but she retained as well a depth of human understanding and a confidence in herself and those about her that endeared her to many thousands. After she became First Lady of the Land, as always in the years preceding, the helpless and the unfortunate received her devotion. Children of every class had her unfailing attention. Wounded veterans of the World War owed her many a debt for hours gladdened by her visits to their hospitals or by flowers sent by her personal order from the White House conservatories. Her unusual outgiving of sympathy extended to animals, many of whom she befriended and protected.

In her thoughtfulness for the interests of others and in her loyalty to her friends, she was outspoken to a degree that won for her recognition as one of the most vigorous-minded women who ever presided over the household of a president. On the night of election day in 1920 she announced her determination to send away the policemen stationed at the White House gates since the United States entered the war—a purpose which was fulfilled on the very day Mr. Harding took office. Before he even had looked around his new offices he issued an order throwing the gates wide open, and hundreds trooped in across the lawn and peeped in at the windows while the new First Lady of the Land was presiding at her first White House function—an informal luncheon for old friends and neighbors from Marion, Ohio.

Firebug Writes Threatening Letter

Reading, Pa., Nov. 24.—County detectives, working on the clues pointing to the author of the seventeen costly barn fires in Berks recently, Sunday checked up a report that Urial B. Horst, a wealthy Schaeffertown, Lebanon county, farmer, owning three large farms, had received a threatening message. It informed him that one of his barns was to be destroyed, but that if he attempted to guard it all three farms would be ravaged.

At the Horst home an armed guard is patrolling each of his farms.

BRITISH MOVE TO FORCE EGYPT

Instructions Given For British Forces to Occupy Alexandria Customs; First Move.

(By Associated Press.)
Cairo, Egypt, Nov. 24.—Lord Allenby, the British high commissioner, at noon today informed the Egyptian premier that instructions had been given for British forces to occupy the Alexandria customs. This, he said, was the first measure to be taken in consequence of Egypt's non-acceptance of all the British demands following the assassination of Sir Lee Stack, the sirdar.

The indemnity of 500,000 pounds demanded by the British for the death of the sirdar was paid by the Egyptian government at 11:45 o'clock this morning.

The payment was accompanied by a note protesting against the British demand for evacuation of the Sudan by Egyptian troops and for the withdrawal of all opposition to the wishes of the British government concerning a protection of foreign interests in Egypt, which demand the note characterizes as unjustifiable.

Cardinal Hayes, one of the youngest Cardinals in the Catholic Church, just passed his fifty-seventh birthday in New York City Sunday. "I'm a good boy," written in an appealing note by "Boone," actress, failed to get her to drop her alimony suit against Robert Starni Eschelman, known on the stage as Don Juan, who was held in a New York City jail.

WIFE BOBS HAIR; HUBBY IS BEARDED

Air Mail Pilot Lets His Whiskers Grow Into a Beard Because His Wife Bobbed Her Hair.

Omaha, Neb., Nov. 24.—"If you bob your hair, I will let my whiskers grow!"

This was the ultimatum which Roy C. Page, night air mail pilot flying between Omaha and Chicago, issued to his wife when she informed him that she proposed to have her beautiful, curly, black hair cut in accordance with the modern style.

But Mrs. Page did not believe her aviator husband, and one morning when he returned from a particularly hard flight and when he was not in such a good humor he found his wife's wavy locks had been shorn.

"Very well, my dear," he said to her. "You have disobeyed me in this, and I will do as I said I would."

He immediately threw away his razor, carried through the World war, in which he was credited with bringing down four German planes, and proceeded to let his whiskers mature in his chin. Day by day they have grown, and he visions, in time, a long, flowing beard trailing behind him in his mail plane like the tail of a comet.

He has vowed that he will not shave until his wife consents to let her hair grow again, but she says that a bearded husband is not so bad, after all.

BABY KILLED AS MOTHER GOES TO SEE DEAD FATHER

Bayonne, N. J., Nov. 24.—Tragedy struck twice Sunday at Mrs. Anna Kotsko and each time took a life—her father's and her 2-year-old baby's.

Mrs. Kotsko received a telegram this morning that her father had died at Wilkes-Barre, Pennsylvania. With her daughter in her arms, she started for her father's home. Attempting to change cars at Elizabethport, she was thrown from the train platform to the tracks. The baby fell under the train and was killed.

Mrs. Kotsko was taken to the Elizabeth hospital with a fractured leg and other injuries.

SON DROPS DEAD IN DOOR OF HOME

Pittsburgh, Nov. 24.—When Mrs. Mary Fitzpatrick, of 5400 Harrison street, keeping her nightly vigil for her 18-year-old son, heard a moan from the rear of her home early Friday morning, she stepped quickly to the door, threw it open, and her son, Martin, with blood gushing from a wound in his neck, fell dead in her arms.

From the street a blood trail to the Fitzpatrick home was mute evidence of the boy's struggle to reach his mother after he had received his death wound in an altercation, police say.

NORMAL ELEVENS FIGHT FOR TITLE

Slippery Rock Normal and Shippensburg Aggregations to Clash Thanksgiving Day.

Many Adams county alumni are expected to attend the football game at Echols' field, Shippensburg, Thursday, when the Shippensburg Normal School and Slippery Rock Normal battle for the state normal championship.

Two Biglerville boys, Sherrick and Homer Gilbert, have berths on the Shippensburg Normal and have played creditable football for their Alma Mater this year. Sherrick Gilbert plays left guard and his brother, left tackle. Each has scored a touchdown so far this season, while Homer Gilbert has blocked a punt in each game this fall.

Slippery Rock's team has been undefeated this season, having trounced Millersville, Westchester and Bloomsburg Normal Schools. Shippensburg holds the eastern state normal school title.

Thursday's game promises to be one of the most hotly contested in the history of the two rival institutions.

SEATS FOR YORK GAME ON SALE

Coach Reynolds Expects to Start "Big Jim" Tennant in Back-field Thursday.

Seats in the section reserved for Gettysburg fans at the Gettysburg-York High School football game at York, Thursday afternoon, are now on sale at Shuman's Drug Store, Baltimore street. The game starts at 2 o'clock on York High's field.

Different arrangements for the seating of the Gettysburg contingent have been made by the York officials this year. In previous years, no section had been reserved for the Maroon and White followers and it was only with great difficulty that cheers for the home team could be secured because the rooters were scattered.

The local high has not been in action since the game which the Maroon and White team lost to Gettysburg Academy, last week's game with the Scotland orphan school having been cancelled because of a scarlet fever epidemic at that institution.

But the high school griders have not been idle. Numerous workouts have kept muscles and wind in shape for the impending struggle with York, which promises to be the severest test the Maroon and White eleven has faced in this year's schedule.

Coach Walter D. Reynolds this morning said that "Big Jim" Tennant's knee trouble, which has kept him out of the major portion of games this season, was rapidly leaving him and that it was possible the sturdy full-back would be started in the backfield to throw forwards, if not to run the ball, in the Thanksgiving Day special. Otherwise, the line-up on Thursday will be the same as it has been in previous games.

MEX REVOLT IS IMPENDING

President-Elect Calles Confirms Rumors That Revolt Over Election Is Expected.

El Paso, Texas, Nov. 24.—Rumors of an impending revolution in Mexico current along the border for several days were confirmed Sunday by Enrique Salcedo, personal representative of President-elect Calles to the Mexican Federation of Labor.

The Government, Salcedo says, now has definite information that revolutionists headed by Gen. Flores and the brothers, Adolfo and Alfonso De La Huerta, and backed by British oil interests, have timed an uprising for December 1, when President-elect Calles takes office.

Supporting his assertion, Salcedo exhibited circulars and other documents calling for action on December 1, which he said were being circulated through underground channels along the border. Responding to these and other calls, he said, rebels have been concentrating in border towns for 10 days past, naming El Paso and Laredo, Texas; Bisbee and Tucson, Arizona, and Las Cruces, N. M., as concentration points.

Christmas Payroll Robbery Frustrated

Pottsville, Pa., Nov. 24.—The entire police force of the Philadelphia & Reading Coal and Iron Company, which has headquarters here, as well as municipal and state police, is trying to locate bandits who apparently planned to hold up paymasters taking Christmas pay to miners.

The fact that two men in different parts of the state have been arrested with maps on their persons showing the roads by which the quickest exit could be made from this region indicates robbers have been attracted by the large sums about to be paid miners for Christmas. All officers guarding payrolls will be fully armed and will shoot to kill.

STRANGER TAKES IT FOR GRANTED

Lancaster, Nov. 24.—A local newspaper reporter was hailed on the street by a city detective.

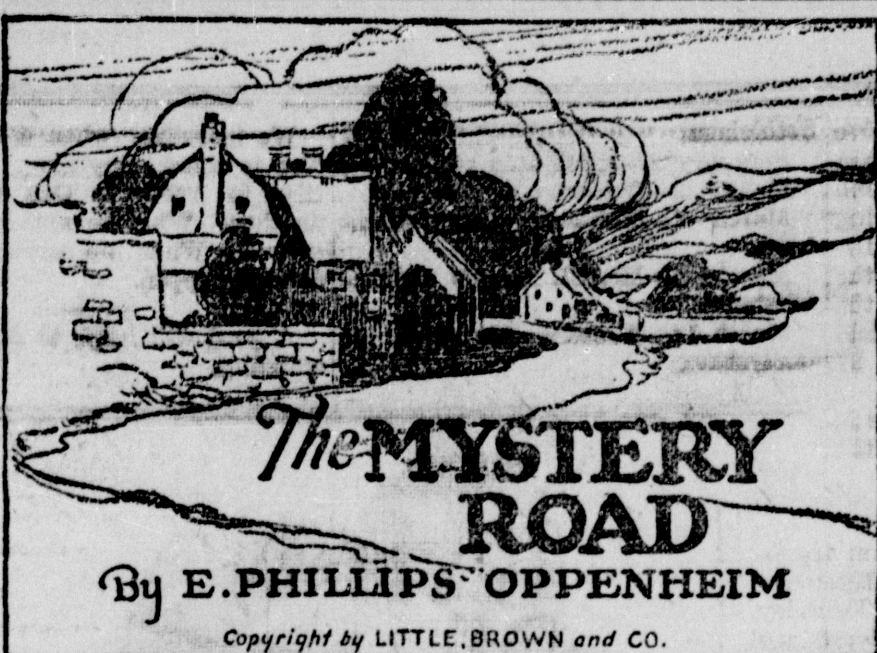

"I'll have something good for you Monday," the officer said.

"All right, I'll be around," replied the reporter, anticipating a good story for his paper.

Before the reporter had gone ten steps he was approached by a stranger who put his arm on the reporter's shoulder and said:

"Let me in on this, buddy, and I'll make it worth while. I'm a stranger in town and don't know where to get it."

He supposed the plainclothes officer to be a bootlegger.

Myrtle slipped through the open doorway. Her prospective husband looked after her for a moment and half rose. Then he looked back at the wine, flowing into his glass. Myrtle would keep—wine by the side of Jean Sargot, never! He resumed his seat. In a minute or two he would follow her—as soon as the second bottle was empty.

Across the stone-flagged floor, out through the little garden and along the cypress avenue to the road, Myrtle fled. She was like a terrified young fawn in the half-light, her hair flying behind her, her large eyes filled with fear. Her feet seemed scarcely to touch the grass-grown track. She fled as one who leaves behind evil things. Only once she looked over her shoulder. No one was stirring, no one seemed to have thought of pursuit. She reached the gate which led out on to the road and clung to it for a moment, as though for protection. On the other side was freedom. Her eyes filled with passionate desire. If only she knew how to gain it!

They were singing now down at the cottage. She heard Jean Sargot's strident voice in some country song of harvest and vintage and what they called love. As she stood there in the quiet of the evening, there seemed suddenly to leap into life a very furnace of revolt. She was weary of her monotonous tasks—the abuse of her stepfather; the care of those motherless children, not of her own stock yet dependent upon her; the gray tedium of a life unbecoming and hopeless. And now this fresh terror! Her fingers tore at the rough splinters of the gate. Her eyes traveled hungrily along that great stretch of road, passing here and there through the forests, rising in the far distance to the top of the brown hillsides, and disappearing in mystery. At the other end of the road one might find happiness!

Chapter II

The two young men adopted characteristic attitudes when confronted with the slight misadventure of a burst tire and a delay of half an hour. Christopher Bent deliberately filled and lit a pipe, and, seating himself on the top of a low, gray stone wall, gave himself up to the joy of a wonderful view and the pleasure of unusual surroundings. His companion, Gerald Dombey, stood peevishly in the middle of the road, with his hands in his pockets, cursing the flint-strewn road, the rottenness of all motor tires, and the evil chance which led to this mishap in the last lap of their journey.

"We'll be on the road again in twenty minutes, your lordship," the chauffeur promised, as he paused for a moment to wipe the perspiration from his forehead.

His master nodded with some signs of returning equanimity.

"Don't distress yourself, John," he said. "There's no real hurry so long as we get into Monte Carlo before dark. Come on, Christopher," he added, turning to his companion. "Get off that wall and let us explore."

The two young men strolled off together. Gerald paused to point to the little, discolored house of Jean Sargot.

"Are they real people who live in these quaint cottages?" he speculated. "That place, for instance, looks like a toy farm, with its patch of violets, its tiny vineyard, its belt of plowed land and this little grove of cypresses. It is just as though some child had taken them all from his play box and laid them out there."

Christopher withdrew the pipe from his mouth for a moment. He was looking at the opening in the little grove of cypresses.

"And there," he murmured, "must be the child to whom they all belong. I think you are right, Gerald. There is something unreal about the place."

Gerald, too, was suddenly conscious of the girl who stood clutching the top of the wooden gate, her face turned a little away from them, absorbed in the contemplation of that distant spot where the road vanished in a faint haze of blue mist.

"We will talk to her," he declared. "You shall practice your French upon this little rustic, Chris. She probably won't be able to understand a word you say."

At the sound of their voices, Myrtle turned her head, and, at the things which they saw in her face, there was no longer any thought of frivolous conversation on the part of the two young men. They stood for a moment indeed, speechless, Christopher spellbound, Gerald, of quicker sensibility, carried for a moment into the world from which she seemed to have fallen. Then his old habits asserted themselves. She was as beautiful as an angel, but her feet were on the ground, and she was obviously in distress.

"Are you alive, mademoiselle?" he asked, raising his cap.

"But certainly, monsieur," she answered gravely. "I am alive but very unhappy."

"You can tell us, perhaps, the way to Cannes?" Christopher inquired.

She pointed to where the thin ribbon of road in the distance seemed to melt into the bosom of the clouds.

"Cannes is over there, monsieur," she said, "and there is no other road save this one."

"You go there often, perhaps?" Christopher ventured.

"I have never been there, monsieur," she answered, with her eyes fixed upon Gerald. "Night after night, when my work is done, I come here and I watch the road just where it fades away, but I have never traveled along it. I have never been further than the first village, down in the hollow."

Gerald came a step nearer to her. He leaned against the gate post. His tone and manner became unconsciously caressing. It was generally so when he spoke with women.

"You are in trouble, mademoiselle," he said. "Sometimes even a stranger may help."

She looked down the road toward where the automobile was jacked up.

"Yes," she admitted, "I am in great trouble. No one but a stranger could help me because I have no friends."

"Be brave, then, and speak on," Gerald enjoined.

There had been no previous time in her life when Myrtle had been required to marshal her thoughts and speak unaccustomed words, yet, at that moment, clearly and unfalteringly she told her story. She pointed to the weather-stained cottage behind.

"I live there," she said, "with three half-brothers and sisters and a stepfather. My mother was the village schoolmistress. She married for the second time a bad man, and she died. I have taken care of those children. I have kept the house clean and tidy. I have done what the cure told me was my duty, and all the time I have hated it."

"Why?" Christopher asked simply.

She looked across as though surprised at his intervention.

"Because the children are coarse and greedy and ill-mannered," she explained. "I wear myself out trying to make them different, but it is useless. It is in their blood, because my stepfather is worse. Often he drinks too much brandy, he is quarrelsome, he is never kind. There is not one little joy in life, only when I escape for a little time and come here, and look down the road which leads to liberty, and wonder what may lie at the other side of the hills there. You see, I have read books—many books. My mother and father were both well educated. I know and feel that the life I am leading is terrible."

"There is something beyond all this," Gerald said. "There is something of instant trouble in your face."

Again for a moment she was voiceless, a white, dumb thing stricken nerveless with horror. It was that look which had surprised the two men. Her breath, as she spoke, seemed choked with unuttered sobs.

"My stepfather brought home from the village tonight—the Widow Dumay. He is to marry her—to bring her to the farm. He brought, too, Pierre Leschamps, the keeper of the cafe. Horrible!—horrible!"

"Pierre Leschamps," Gerald murmured softly. "Go on."

The girl opened her lips but the words seemed to stick in her throat.

"They propose, perhaps, to betroth you?" he asked, with quick understanding.

Her assent was mirrored in the agony of her eyes.

"He is fat and old and he drinks," she cried. "I would sooner die than have him come near me!"

"Look upon us as two friends," Gerald begged. "What would you have us do?"

The girl pointed once more to where the road disappeared amongst the hills.

"If you leave me here," she declared, "I shall walk and run and crawl until I pass out of sight, and perhaps they may borrow the widow's cart and catch me, and then I shall kill myself. Take me with you as far as you are going—somewhere where I can hide."

The car glided slowly up to where they were standing. Gerald did not hesitate for a moment. He stepped into his place at the driving wheel and motioned to the seat by his side.

"Agreed," he said. "We will start you, little one—tell me, how are you called?"

"Myrtle," she murmured.

"We will start you off on the great adventure of life. It seems to me that there can be nothing worse in store for you than what you leave behind."

The girl pushed open the gate and sprang into the car like a frightened thing. Gerald turned his head. Around the corner of the farm three unsteady figures showed themselves; three voices—two raucous and one shrill—called for Myrtle. There were threats, gesticulations. The girl covered by Gerald's side.

GANG JAILED FOR ATTACKS ON GIRLS

Berwick, Pa., Nov. 24.—Charged with attacking seventeen white girls, ranging in age from 11 to 15 years, James Jefferson, Lee Shaw, Ernest

Shaw and Ernest Brown, colored, were committed to the county jail Sunday.

The attacks are alleged to have occurred during the last two months, several of the girls having been victimized several times. Two of the girls, a Miss Naus, 11 years old, and Annie Kachurka, 15, are in the Berwick Hospital. The police did not disclose the names of the other girls.

Nothing is so great an enemy to tranquility and a contented spirit as the amazement and confusions of unreadiness and inconsideration.

He kissed her fiercely, holding her to him, and the girl hid her face in his coat—her heart beating wildly. Neither of them spoke.

Of all the forms of flattery that strike home, there is none so subtle as the deference paid by a man of the world to a young girl.

Sir Melmoth Craven's manner gave Margaret Garth to understand that she was the one woman under the sun whose opinion he valued, and that her confidence honored him.

The blood ran quicker in her veins as she listened to him, his keen, strong face near hers, and a thrill ran through her nerves that was new to her.

She did not know he was a scoundrel who had a long train of wicked deeds behind him.

Afterwards came the awakening.

It was only a mother's love that saved her.

MRS. HARDING

Mrs. Florence Kling Harding was laid to rest today, but the lovely example she set in life will never be forgotten by those fortunate enough to have known her, slightly or intimately.

It is less than two years and a half since Mrs. Harding was in Gettysburg, a member of the distinguished party which reviewed the Marine Corps' re-enactment of Pickett's Charge. President Harding himself, General Pershing, General Dawes, now vice president-elect; General Sawyer, Theodore Roosevelt, Secretary Christian, General Butler, General Le Jeune, Senator Pepper, Senator McCormick, Governor Sproul and Governor Trinkle, of Virginia, were included in the party.

But the most sparkling personality of all was Mrs. Harding. She ruled the "White House" here. She was the idol of the party, the visitors and the group of visiting newspapermen.

Courtesy marked her every action toward the four young women, the former Miss Ruth Stallsmith, and Misses Evelyn Toot, Madelyn Roth and Constance Weaver, all of Gettysburg, who acted as ladies in waiting. Late in the evening at her "command" the weary president rose and shook hands "good night" with every one of the four young women, all prettily garbed in white.

Not only courtesy but kindness marked Mrs. Harding's nature. One striking example of this attribute was her plea to Governor Sproul which resulted in the saving of the life of "Dick," a Landsdale St. Bernard, condemned to die because his master was an alien and unnaturalized.

Now in the short space of fifteen months the name "Harding" has passed into the oblivion of history. The president, his faithful friend and physician, and now his wife are dead.

But thousands of persons will cherish their memory, especially that of the gentle, lovable "first lady of the land."

BUYING THE TOYS

Some little girls will have big, flaxen-haired dolls smiling from their stockings on Christmas morning. Some little boys will have toy airplanes, bomb-throwers and all the other paraphernalia of modern nursery warfare.

Some other little girls and boys won't.

But those whose dollies are the ordinary sawdust kind with eyes staring, in front of them, and those whose toy soldiers are just everyday fellows are to be congratulated.

The toys have known it all along. They have known, too, that the humbler ones of their assemblage, now so shiny with new paint in a thousand toy shops over the land, are due for a far happier life than their pretentious brothers and sisters who are destined for the homes of the rich. For a toy's happiness is measured by the love that is lavished upon it. And the child who has one simple toy thinks far more of it than he or she who has a new trinket for every mood.

Psychologists are beginning to find this out. They have worked out a whole involved system of toy teachings, in which the child mind dwells principally on simple objects, plain

WHAT THE BABY DID FOR US

When Janet came, her brother there
Was ten years old and, oh, so wise!
I'm sure the house was in despair,
There were no fairies anywhere,
She'd ceased to croon her lullabies.
And age had come and swept away
The lovely charm of Christmas day.

With Peter Rabbit we were done,
To go where pirates buccanered.
Flopsy and Mopsy long were gone,
The wooden horse he rode upon.
With Mother Goose had disappeared.
For he had turned to rougher play,
And we had lost our Christmas day.

PIRATE STORY
MAY BE A FAKE

New York, Nov. 24.—Captain Paul C. Grening, of the United States liner President Harding, docked his ship Friday, convinced he had been duped when the British auxiliary schooner Veronica detained him for two hours in the north Atlantic last Wednesday night while her master spun a yarn of high-seas piracy.

Captain Grening related that at dusk Wednesday he turned the liner about on perceiving S O S flares and rockets 100 miles off Cape Sable and headed for the vessel signaling distress. The ship proved to be the Veronica. Strangely enough, according to the Harding's master, the Veronica, with all sails set, started off, as though in flight. Puzzled, Captain Grening ordered a pursuit, and got within hailing distance in an hour.

LINCOLN HIGHWAY
REROUTING ASKED

Harrisburg, Nov. 24.—Rerouting of the Lincoln Highway through a number of cities and towns was asked of the state highway department Friday by G. H. Hoag, of Detroit, field secretary of the Lincoln Highway Association, at a conference with Secretary of Highways Wright and Chief Engineer Connell.

The department has no jurisdiction over highway routing through municipalities. Hoag proposed rerouting at Malvern, Coatesville and Pittsburgh to eliminate either dangerous or congested conditions, and suggested new routes to be adopted through Lancaster and York to avoid the public squares.

I could not interest him then
In tales of goblins, pixies, elves,
He wanted yarns of fighting men,
The books which Cooper used to pen
And found them standing on my shelves.
Then little Janet came to stay
And brought us back our Christmas day.

We have our Santa Claus one more,
Again we have our Christmas tree,
Now just behind my library door,
A rag doll lies upon the floor,
And painted blocks marked A. B. C.
Again we have those joys to claim
Which we had lost, till Janet came.

ORANGE-BLUE
READY FOR F-M

Light Workouts to Feature First Three Days This Week For Thanksgiving Tilt.

A long hike yesterday afternoon, light scrimmage this afternoon, signal drill Tuesday afternoon and a light workout Wednesday marks the closing of the 1294 gridiron rehearsals of the Orange and Blue Squad of Gettysburg College. The prime factor in the minds of the coaches of the local institution now is the Thanksgiving day clash with Franklin and Marshall at Lancaster Thursday afternoon.

A hectic season, perhaps the most disastrous in the reign of Coach Bill Wood, marked by injury upon injury to star gridirers, presented a problem that was anything but easy for the local mentor to solve. Early in the season, material, around which Coach Wood hoped to build a formidable aggregation, suffered injuries that forced a cessation of early season plans and activities and a new attack was started. Repeated upsets in the regular line-up caused through injuries constituted the season's work for Coach Wood.

However, despite the many injuries and loss of what was considered a formidable combination, the ardor of the local enthusiasts was not dampened and the team is emerging from the season with a record, that while comparable with other years, is not to be frowned upon and the Orange and Blue warriors are being commended for the valiant efforts on the gridiron against teams far out of their division.

All efforts are concentrated on developing an offensive eleven for the final tilt of the season, and Orange and Blue rooters are expected to flock to Lancaster in numbers to back their idols against the strong F. & M. team.

Tickets for the game are on sale at Shuman's.

CHURCHES LIABLE
FOR WATER RENT

Pittsburgh, Nov. 24.—The payment of water rent is not "taxes" within the meaning of the act of 1901 of the Pennsylvania legislature exempting certain properties from taxation, ruled Judge James Carpenter, in common pleas court here Friday, in an opinion holding that "actual places of religious worship" and "institutions of public charity" may lawfully be charged for water rents.

The suit was brought by the city of Pittsburgh against the Young Women's Christian Association, and the decision affects twenty-two other similar proceedings in which charitable institutions contested the right of the city to file liens for the collection of water rents.

GOLD NUGGETS
TURN INTO TIN

New York, Nov. 24.—A bluff, hearty miner dropped in at Sitkowski's Cafe, in Mineola, Friday and showed the gold nuggets which stuffed his briefcase.

He said he would sell the whole collection of nuggets for $2000. A quiet stranger offered to chip in $200 and another made a similar offer. Sitkowski contributed the remaining $1600, and later discovered that the nuggets were ketchup bottle caps, hammered into lumps. A little later Mrs. Margaret Dwyer, whose husband John, a retired policeman, runs a hotel in Mineola, gave up $2400 under similar circumstances.

Orange and Blue Basketball
Coach Elated Over Prospects
For Coming Season.

Coach Doyle Leathers of the Orange and Blue basketball squad of Gettysburg College issued his first call for candidates for the team for Monday evening, November 30, in the college gymnasium.

With six letter men as a nucleus and with more than 50 men already to don the togs for the Orange and Blue, most of whom are Freshmen, Coach Leathers is elated with prospects for a championship crew this year.

The opening clash of the season is with Blue Ridge College here on December 17, followed by the Navy clash at Annapolis on January 7. Then follows one of the hardest schedules an Orange and Blue five has been confronted with in years.

One of the hardest games on the schedule is the tilt with Penn State at State College on January 24. Last year Penn State defeated the local five in the last two minutes of play, when they scored a field goal and a foul, while Gettysburg led the scoring through the entire contest. The Lehigh clash was a similar incident, the Bethlehem squad emerging from the fray in the last minute, with a field goal, when Gettysburg led them by one point up to the last minute.

Captain Peduzzi, Gerhart, Bream, Emanuel, Barbour and Fisher are the regulars who are back this year.

B. B. Schedule

The schedule follows:

December 17—Blue Ridge College, at Gettysburg.

January 7—Navy at Annapolis.

January 10—Albright at Gettysburg.

January 17—Mt. St. Mary's at Gettysburg.

January 23—Juniata at Gettysburg.

January 24—Penn State at State College.

February 4—Dickinson at Gettysburg.

February 7—Western Maryland at Westminster.

February 9—Temple University at Gettysburg.

February 12—Franklin & Marshall at Gettysburg.

February 25—Lehigh at South

Bethlehem, 17-4.

February 27—Dickinson at Carlisle.

March 3—Delaware at Newark.

March 4—Muhlenberg at Allentown.

March 7—Mt. St. Mary's at Emmitzburg.

March 14—Western Maryland at Gettysburg.

"Content's A Kingdom"

--Thomas Heywood

Every citizen of Gettysburg should possess it. For, are not the Prosperity, Progress and general Welfare of a great Community best reflected in the CONTENTED DISPOSITIONS OF ITS RESIDENTS?

Put yourself in the place of the visitor within our gates. If he's of the type who judge as they pass--and most of them do--he'll formulate his opinion of us and our town by the welcome he receives, the friendliness he observes about him, the neighborliness of our citizens--the state of CONTENTMENT we show.

So go about with a friendly smile—one that you really mean. Speak a kind word for Gettysburg whenever the opportunity presents itself. Do a kind deed for your neighbor now and then and he'll do as much for you. Make the visitor feel at home by imparting what information you can with a cheerfulness that bespeaks your CONTENTMENT in living in this great community.

Surely, you have every reason in the world to be CONTENT here. Your interests, both commercial and social, are here. Our resources are just beginning to be developed. And yours are the countless opportunities to make this a better place in which to live and enjoy life to its fullest extent.

We, the undersigned professional and business interests, believe that the happy, CONTENTED citizen is a better Advertisement for Gettysburg than the biggest billboard on earth could be.

Heed this advice and--BE ONE.

What Your American Red Cross Does

Carries on Work of Vital Importance to American People

THE AMERICAN RED CROSS, since the war, has been offered boundless opportunities for service. With thousands of disabled ex-service men still in hospitals, with disasters occurring almost weekly, with hundreds of thousands dying yearly through preventable disease, through accident, through lack of knowledge of the simplest rules of hygiene and health, the need is greater than ever before.

The Red Cross meets this need through a group of unified services, to carry on which it is chartered by Congress. This peace-time work is less spectacular than the war work. Much of it, the public health work in particular, is less interesting generally, except to those who directly benefit by it. For it is no easy matter to interest a healthy person in health. Yet it is a work that is of vital importance to the American people. America could no more do without the Red Cross in peace than it could have done without it in war.

With Service and Ex-Service Men

Service to the disabled veterans of the World War continues as the first obligation of the Red Cross. Since the Armistice it has expended $59,000,000 for services to these men and to men of the Army and Navy. It is now assisting more than 100,000 disabled veterans and their families each month. To 180,000 soldiers, sailors and marines on active duty it is giving the same help it gave during the war. There are today more than twenty-five hundred Red Cross Chapters, in all parts of the country, that are carrying on soldier work.

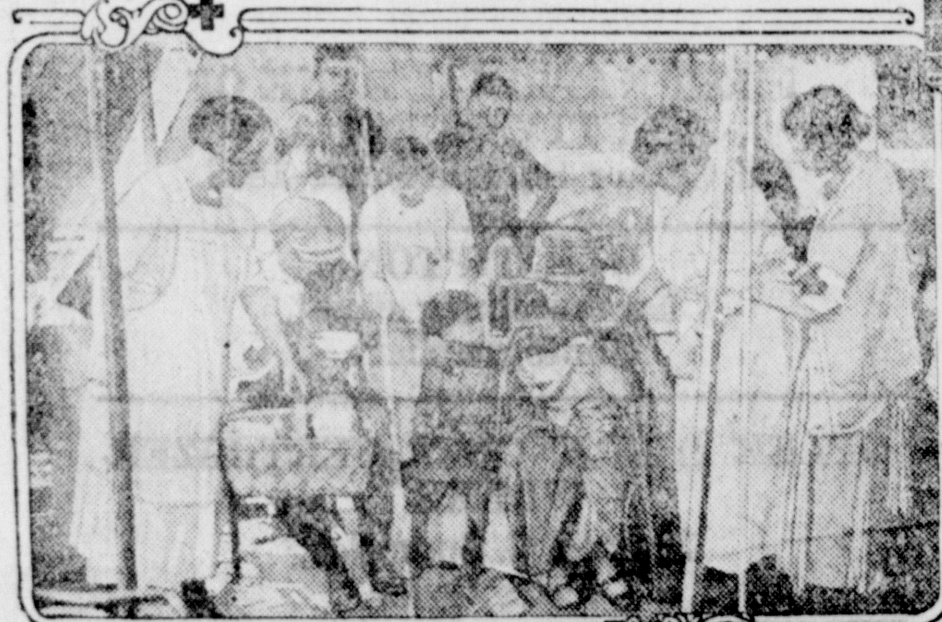

With the Army and Navy, the Red Cross has continued to act as a medium of communication between the enlisted man and his family at home. Field Directors are maintained at all stations, camps, and hospitals, supplementing the welfare of the men, providing entertainment and recreation for convalescents, and keeping the families advised of their condition. Occupational therapy has been continued at nine Naval hospitals.

The Nursing Service

At the request of the Government the Red Cross holds the reserve out of which are recruited the Army and Navy Nursing Corps, both in time of war and in some sudden emergency of peace. During the war it assembled, equipped and assigned 19,817 nurses to active service with our Armies and Navy. Today there are 41,000 qualified nurses enrolled in this reserve.

Disaster Relief

The far-reaching organization of the Red Cross, with its thousands of chapters and branches, forming a close network over the entire country, is well fitted to bring prompt aid when the lightning stroke of disaster flashes down upon a peaceful community, killing hundreds, rendering thousands homeless and destitute. Into such a scene of despair and hopelessness the Red Cross brings food and clothing, medicine, tents for shelter, blankets and all kinds of supplies. Equipped with trained workers, with stores of relief supplies located at strategic points throughout the country, the resources of the entire organization can be brought to bear within a few hours upon the most remote hamlet.

Nor do the workers go until the work is finished. In the tornado which devastated Lorain, Ohio, last June, more than 7,000 persons were left homeless. The Red Cross is still working for the rehabilitation of these people.

During the first half of 1924 the Red Cross gave assistance in more disasters than during any similar period in its history. This year the flood in China brought an immediate response from the Red Cross treasury. Disaster Relief has been and must continue to be one of the most important of Red Cross activities.

Public Health Nursing

The Red Cross has appointed public health nurses in many communities which desired such service.

The public health nurse is the guardian of the health of all those in her neighborhood. She inspects the school children for physical defects, organizes classes in Home Hygiene and Care of the Sick, in Food Selection and First Aid, so that the women and girls may be better fitted to maintain the health of their families, and to care for members of their households in time of minor illnesses. She tells expectant mothers how to take care of themselves, so that the mortality from childbirth may be reduced. Today almost a thousand Red Cross nurses in their picturesque uniforms and small cars are carrying the chance to live, the message of health, and the good will of the Red Cross to people of mining communities, bleak and wind-swept mountain plateaus, and lonely rural settlements throughout the United States and her possessions.

Home Hygiene and Care of the Sick

The course in Home Hygiene and Care of the Sick which the Red Cross is offering to women and girls throughout the country has two aims. The first is to teach the elementary principles of nursing, so that in war or pestilence, when there is a shortage of professional nurses, there may be a sufficient supply of volunteers available. The second is to assist in checking mortality by the intelligent care of babies and children, and to further adult health and efficiency by aided in the war and more than 2,000,000 were so seriously injured that each lost over four weeks' time or was permanently maimed. These startling statistics call for a wide-spread and far-reaching remedy. The Red Cross aims to supply the remedy by instruction in First Aid and Accident prevention.

During the past ten years First Aid representatives of the Red Cross have covered nearly the entire country—traveling altogether something over half a million miles. During that time 500,000 persons have had First Aid instruction among railroad em-teaching the simple rules of personal hygiene and household sanitation.

Nutrition Service

The Nutrition Service of the Red Cross meets the modern demand for a proper understanding of food values and their relation to community health. During the year 2,700 dietitians have been enrolled to help carry on the nutrition program.

The outstanding accomplishment of the Nutrition Service this year has been the further development and improvement of methods, material and organization necessary for establishing and carrying on nutrition programs under the itinerant worker. This worker is with each Red Cross Chapter for a three or four-month period during which time she organizes a Nutrition committee of chapter men and women, conducts classes employees alone. Last year 14,500 persons completed the course, and 135,000 were reached with demonstrations by the First Aid Car.

Red Cross experience shows that the accident rate among men in industry who have had First Aid instruction is 75 per cent less than among the uninstructed. Red Cross Chapters throughout the country are prepared to assist groups of people anywhere in taking the course.

An organization devoted to life-saving at the various waterfronts and resorts was inaugurated in 1914. This is the American Red Cross Life Saving Corps, which has trained more than 49,000 men, women and youths to rescue and revive the drowning. These volunteers are instructed and organized into corps by the expert life-savers on the Red Cross staff.

The Chapters

During the year volunteer workers have produced 150,000 garments, 1,000,000 surgical dressings and 87,000 pages of Braille. They have made 15,000 motor calls and fed 22,000 persons in canteen service. In 500 communities the Red Cross Chapter is the only family welfare agency.

Junior Red Cross

Organized in 1917 the American Junior Red Cross has today 5,452, 745 children enrolled in public, private and parochial schools. Born as a war movement to provide suitable channels of American Red Cross relief work for American children, it is now in close touch with the children of forty other countries, creating bonds of mutual friendship and understanding.

When the Armistice was signed the Red Cross, mustered these children into an army of peace, whose ideal should be one of service to others. Today Juniors are identified with their seniors in health class instruction, in disaster relief work, in salvage and in other service.

The Juniors pay no membership fee, but every child must have earned the right to wear the Junior badge, "I Serve," by one or more of three ways—performance of a significant service for the school, the community or the local Red Cross Chapter, participation in school enterprises by which a Junior Red Cross Service Fund is raised; contribution to the Junior Red Cross Service Fund from money earned by personal service or personal sacrifice.

TRAINS SWIMMERS IN EFFECTIVE METHODS OF WATER LIFE SAVING

Carrying out its slogan of "Happy childhood the world over," the American Junior Red Cross has become acquainted, through a system of international school correspondence, with the children of other nations.

Foreign Operations

While the Red Cross work is largely carried on at home, it has in recent years rendered important assistance during times of disaster in the following countries: France, Belgium, Italy, Austria, Germany, Hungary, Poland, Yugoslavia, Czechoslovakia, Rumania, Bulgaria, Albania, Greece, Turkey, Finland, Estonia, Latvia, Lithuania, Russia, Siberia, Japan, China, Chile, Ecuador, Colombia and Costa Rica.

The position of the Red Cross among American institutions is unique in that, while certain duties have been placed upon it by Congress, it is at the same time a voluntary organization. Its membership is a voluntary membership; its work is carried on by voluntary contributions and membership dues. The amount of work that it can accomplish, therefore, is directly measured by the amount of support which the American people give it.

During the Eighth Annual Roll Call, from November 11th to 27th, the Red Cross offers the people an opportunity to reaffirm their faith in the ideal of service for which it stands—to pay their membership dues and become a part of the organization for the coming year. If you—one person in millions—fail to join, it may seem a little thing. But the Red Cross is your Red Cross—you are a part of it; and if you fail to join, by just so much the Red Cross fails of its high purpose.

The Red Cross has kept faith with you. Join during the Roll Call, and keep faith with the Red Cross.

Paris, Nov. 24.—The ashes of Jean Jaures, the famous French Socialist, were laid to rest Sunday in the Pantheon to the strains of "La Carmagnole," the old anthem of the French Revolution. A lone cornetist played the anthem as the casket was placed on the great improvised altar in the famous church, which has been converted into a sort of temple of republicanism.

Last night the ashes of the great Socialist and pacifist orator lay alongside those of the Chevalier de la Tour d'Auvergne, Napoleon's "first grenadier of France."

AN OLD RECIPE
TO DARKEN HAIR

Sage Tea and Sulphur Turns
Gray, Faded Hair Dark and Glossy.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, bring back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients, at very little cost. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.—adv.

SHIP RAMMED,
CAPTAIN KILLED

Eight Members of Crew of Rammed Schooner Adrift on Wreckage For Twelve Hours.

Wilson, of Fair Haven, Mass., master of the schooner Perry Setzer, was killed early Saturday morning when his vessel was rammed and virtually cut in two by an unidentified steamer in a fog 30 miles south of Cape Hatteras, according to information brought here Sunday night by the United Fruit liner Calamaries, from Cuba.

The eight members of the crew of the Perry Setzer, after hanging to the rigging of the almost submerged schooner, were rescued by the oil tanker Solona 15 miles north of Cape Hatteras Saturday afternoon, 12 hours after the collision, it was reported.

Tells of Sighting Schooner
Capt. Harry Spencer of the Calamaries reported Sunday night that when his vessel was 15 miles north of Cape Hatteras he encountered the schooner with decks awash, a mainmast broken and the crew clinging to the rigging of the virtually submerged craft, which was a four-master.

He said there was a deep gash in the starboard side which almost divided the schooner.

When he arrived near the vessel he observed that lifeboats were being launched from the tanker Solona, which was bound from Tampico, Mexico, to Philadelphia.

LITTLESTOWN

Littlestown.—Miss Brenda K. Badders, a nurse in training at the Church Home and Infirmary, Baltimore, Maryland, spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Badders, and family, Lombard street. The degree team of the Sylvania Lodge of Odd Fellows will confer the initiation degree on a class of candidates at its regular meeting Tuesday evening, November 25. A large attendance of the members is expected.

Miss Viola Hull, South Queen street, spent the past week with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. John S. Maus, near Silver Run, Maryland. Mrs. J. Harry Koontz, Mrs. Calvin C. Crouse, East King street, and Mrs. John A. Keefer, North Queen street, spent Friday in Baltimore, Maryland.

Misses Evelyn Byers and Ruth Ella Mayers, near town, are spending some time at the home of their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis O. Byers, of Philadelphia.

John Zercher, of Hanover, spent Saturday as the guest of his brother, Charles Zercher, and family, Cemetery avenue.

Mrs. William S. Menges, near town, entered the Annie M. Warner hospital, Gettysburg, where she is undergoing treatment.

Miss Elsie Breighner, near town, spent the week-end with her sister, Mrs. Clifford McKonley, and family near Guldens Station.

Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Souders and Miss Elizabeth Crouse, East King street, spent Thursday in Baltimore, Maryland.

Miss Gertrude Stavelly, East King street, recently entered St. Joseph's hospital, Baltimore, Maryland, where she is a patient.

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Keefer, North Queen street, and Mr. and Mrs. William Robinson and son, Nedson, of York, spent the week-end with Joseph B. Dreisch and family of Baltimore, Maryland.

The first public meeting of the Littlestown High School Literary Society will be held Friday evening December 5th. Officers have been elected and a program committee is at work arranging a program. It is expected at one of these early meetings a debating team from Biglerville High School will contest with the local team. The public is invited.

The Rev. and Mrs. H. Clay Bergstresser, daughter, Ruth, and son John, West King street, and Mr. and Mrs. James Staub, Lombard street, were entertained at dinner Thursday as guests of the latter's son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Luther S. Staub, of Hanover.

TO DELAY IS DANGEROUS

IF KIDNEYS ACT BAD TAKE SALTS

Says Backache Often Means You Have Not Been Drinking Enough Water.

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it may mean you have been eating foods which create acids, says a well-known authority. An excess of such acids overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and oggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels, removing all the body's unwholesome waste, else you have backache, sick headache, lizzy spells; your stomach sour, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys also to neutralize acids in the system, so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, can not injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink. Drink lots of soft water. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year. Adv.

Eczema

At last a good night's sleep!

Oh! The joy of a peaceful, restful night. What a wonderful "up and going" feeling follows such a night of undisturbed slumber.

Oh! What tortures—what agony—what despair—goes with the nights where eczema and other skin diseases hold power and drive away rest and peaceful slumber. For under the cover of darkness like crafty beings of the underworld these eruptions work their most serious havoc.

S.S.S. is the established conqueror of these annoying skin diseases. S.S.S. drives these ever disturbing elements from your system—elements that carry in their wake—lack of energy—undermining health! You may try in vain to get rid of them by using salves, lotions, washes, all to no purpose. You can't do it that way—the seat of the trouble lies deeper—impure blood trying to throw off poisons through the tender skin.

S.S.S. purifies the blood. It aids Nature in creating new red-blood-cells by the million! Blood-cells that send new rich blood coursing through your system. Red blood that drives away eczema—drives away pimples, blackheads, boils and rheumatism, too. An increase in red-blood-cells means added strength, added vitality and renewed vigor. Because the medicinal ingredients of S.S.S. are purely vegetable, it may be taken with perfect safety. Start taking S.S.S. today and watch it rout that annoying, skin destroying, health undermining army that holds your system in its grasp! Learn again what it means to enjoy peaceful, restful nights of slumber.

S.S.S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.
